Grade

Moderate to Challenging

Thousands of regular walkers complete the WHW every year – but remember this is a challenging route passing through increasingly remote and mountainous areas. There are some longer days too. This is a route for experienced walkers. Terrain: Varied – lowland meadows, foothills, loch sides, remote moorland, and high mountain passes – it has it all!

What's it like underfoot? The route is generally well maintained, but there are sections where the going is rougher and others where it can get muddy. The side is Loch Lomond is infamous for its difficult tree roots.

How Much Up & Down? Not too much considering where you are! Over 4000m of ascent in total, with climbs of 300 - 500m on most days. The 2 biggest climbs – 500m up the Devils' Staircase, and 700m out of Kinlochleven, are saved for the final 2 days.

Signposting: Good.

Navigation: Signposting is good and the route follows well defined paths, so no particular difficulties. But there are sections of remote wilderness (Rannoch Moor), and higher mountain terrain (where you may be in the mist on a bad day) so you need to be able to navigate – these aren't places you want to get lost.

Route

Milngavie - Drymen

The Way starts in Milngavie, a suburb of Glasgow. It travels across rolling hills and lowland plains. This is an easy pleasant walk along the valleys of Blane and Endrick with good views of the hills.

Drymen - Rowardennan

The Way continues with a mixture of good woodland paths, moderate gradients on Conic Hill and hillside tracks. The approach to Loch Lomond is very picturesque.

Rowardennan - Crianlarich

Today is mainly rugged walking over loch side rocks and tree roots with some scrambling. This can be a wild and demanding section of the Way, especially north of Inversnaid.

Crianlarich - Inveroran

With typical highland walking in glens and over low passes with moderate ascents and descents, on mainly well surfaced paths and tracks. There are many fine mountain views to be enjoyed today.

Inveroran - Kinlochleven

A moderate to hard day with amazing scenery. The terrain is mainly good underfoot but it is highly exposed and can be difficult in bad weather - be prepared! The day starts with a crossing of the vast Rannoch Moor.

Kinlochleven - Fort William

Starting with a steep climb out of Kinlochleven followed by rough paths in Nevis Forest, your final day finishes with a gentle descent into Fort William.

Additional Days

Tyndrum

Today's village earns much of its living by providing goods, services and accommodation to passing travelers, mostly motorists heading up or down the busy A85 and A82 trunk roads. In doing so, Tyndrum is carrying on a long tradition. The village's origins date back to the days when droves of highland cattle from the north and west passed through en route to markets in central Scotland bringing lots of tired, hungry and thirsty drovers with them. This is a good location for a "rest day" in order to travel along the picturesque West Highland Train Line to visit Oban – a coastal resort with a difference - the town and its bay are virtually land-locked, giving it a sheltered setting. For memorable views walk up Oban Hill to McCaig's Tower or take a walk to Ganavan Sands and relax on the beach.

Fort William

Fort William is the capital of the West Highlands, situated at the head of Loch Linnhe. It's not the prettiest of towns, but there are good number of shops, and some good outdoor stores to browse around or buy new gear. A lot of people take an extra day here to climb Ben Nevis – Britain's highest mountain (1344m / 4409ft). It's a long day, and the weather can be harsh, so make sure you are fit and prepared!

Getting There and Away

Detailed instructions on getting to your first night's accommodation by car, or on foot from the nearest train or bus station, will also be included in the holiday pack on individual accommodation maps.

an essential part of any holiday . We make a special effort to find the hidden gems, as well as keeping a close eye on the quality of the more mainstream accommodation. As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem. We have three former Keswick guest house owners on the staff – so we know the industry well.

The West Highland Way includes a great variety of accommodation , including small country hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfasts, farm house accommodation, and Victorian town houses. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail.

Client Feedback

We're proud of our reputation for quality holiday son the Northumberland Coast. There are plenty of customer reviews on our Website but here's a couple of comments to give you a flavour:

"The service was flawless. At the end of a long day of walking the last thing a person wants to think about is "is my reservation correct and will my bag be there". I did not think about either of those things once! We had a wonderful time and I would highly recommend Mickledore. Regards, Nancy - happy customer."

Nancy Raskin, Maryland, USA.

"We will be doing the whole route in future and would love to stay at the same B&B's. Many thanks. I have been in the travel industry for 20 years and Mickledore is up at the top. You give us great service with what we got. Many thanks again and keep up the good work."
