Arran Coastal Way

The Arran Coastal Way takes you on an anti-clockwise journey around the coastline of Arran, one of the most beautiful Scottish Islands. Explore remote beaches as you make your way between the small coastal villages.

For such a small island, Arran has a great variety of landscapes and geology – the north is dominated by craggy mountains, whilst the south is characterised by rolling lowlands and forests. There’s wildlife aplenty, with red deer and red squirrels, golden eagles above, and basking sharks out to sea.

You can also include an ascent of Goat Fell, the highest fell on the island, if you are feeling more adventurous.
Summary
Why do this walk?
• Experience 'Scotland in miniature' with Highland fells in the north and undulating Lowlands in the South, as well as secluded sandy beaches around the island.
• On the route you pass areas of great geological importance (Hutton’s Unconformity), a wide variety of wildlife including red deer, golden eagles and basking sharks as well as areas of historical significance (Droon Fort and King’s Cave).

Essential Info
Length 4 - 9 nights
Full Route Length 67 miles / 108 km
Shortest Break Length 32 miles / 51 km

Grade Moderate to Challenging
There are several rocky sections along this route which should be easy enough to tackle for most reasonably fit people. Goat Fell has a sheer drop on one side on the descent and a river crossing via stepping stones, this can be avoided in bad weather or for people with vertigo by taking the low route. The paths along the shore are not always clear but as the route follows the coast it is hard to get lost. As some sections are impassable at high tide it is important to check the tides before setting off.

Terrain: A coastal path with a mostly rocky shoreline, some road sections (not very busy) and forest tracks. Depending on the tide the route can be sandy or shingly with some boulder fields that are slow going and can be tiring. Consider an itinerary with shorter days than you would normally choose to allow for this.

What's it like underfoot? A mixture of road, rocky shoreline (which can be slippery after high tide or in wet weather) forest tracks and some constructed paths. A few sections may be muddy after heavy rain.

How Much Up & Down? Mostly flat, apart from the Goat Fell option which involves a climb of 874 meters (there is a get out at 630 meters). The alternative forest route between Lagg and Whiting Bay rises up to 250 meters.

Signposting: There is little signposting on the route.

Navigation: A compass is required if you do the Goat Fell section – the map is sufficient for the coastal paths.

Route Brodick to Corrie
After a brief walk along the main road in Brodick you then walk along the beach, cutting through the golf course, before picking up the road again at Strabane. Follow the main road north until you reach Cladach where the outdoor shop is located in case you need any last minute purchases before hitting the trail. After a short climb from Cladach you have the choice of continuing on up Goat Fell, or a more leisurely walk through the forest. The forest trail saves about 1.5 miles and 1600 feet of climbing and is therefore suitable for those wanting a less strenuous walk, or in bad weather (the path up Goat Fell is not signposted). We also recommend the forest trail for those walking from Brodick to Lochranza in one day. Both trails take you back to the coast road and into Corrie.

Corrie to Lochranza
Leaving Corrie it is a short walk to Sannox. From Sannox cross over the stepping stones at Sannox Burn and continue along the beach – looking out for dolphins and basking sharks! If the tide is out you can cross the stream at the north end of the beach to access the picnic site, or head up the bank of the stream to cross at the bridge if the burn is impassable on the beach. From the picnic site continue around the coast passing Fallen Rocks, Laggan Harbour, The Cock of Arran, and Siciodan Rock Fall. The Coastal Way Project has recently improved the path through Siciodan Rock Fall making it much easier to negotiate, especially in wet weather. The path then leads around to...
Lochranza passing Hutton’s Unconformity to the north of Newtown Point. There is also an escape route from Laggan Cottage just after Laggan Harbour.

Lochranza to Pirnmill
Upon leaving Lochranza on the coast road immediately head up the track leading to the cliff tops overlooking the north shore and follow the trail to Catacol. This section has recently been upgraded by the Arran Coastal Way team. From Catacol follow the road as it swings southwards towards Pirnmill.

Pirnmill to Blackwaterfoot
After Pirnmill follow the rocky shoreline to the south side of Imachar brae where you re-join the road heading south toward Machrie. As you head out of Machrie eventually pass King’s Cave where, it is believed, Robert the Bruce stayed en route to taking the Scottish crown in 1314. The path then continues south past Doon Fort, a 2000 year old Iron Age fort, before heading into Blackwaterfoot.

Blackwaterfoot to Lagg
Leaving Blackwaterfoot the path heads south along the shore past the Preaching Cave. A stretch of road walking follows, returning to the shore for a brief section before reaching Lagg/ Kilmory. Avoids Cleat’s Shore – Scotland’s only naturist beach!

Lagg to Whiting Bay
You have various options to get from Lagg to Whiting Bay which are dependant on the tide and your ability.

From Lagg you continue along the beach until you reach a boulder field and then Black Cave at Bennan Head. This section is not passable at high tide and there is an alternate road route if the tide is high or you wish to avoid the boulder field. The route continues along the shore to Kildonan where you may be lucky enough to spot seals and otters.

For those who did not find the boulders at Black Cave challenging enough, and if the tide is in your favour, the route then proceeds through another boulder field around Dippen Head and Largybeg Point before an easier walk into Whiting Bay.

Whiting Bay to Lamlash
The main trail heads inland at the southern end of Whiting Bay and heads towards Glenashdale Falls. The trail then leads past another Iron Age fort and then continues along the Kilmory-Lamlash cycle track.

The alternate route takes you through Whiting Bay and around Kingscross Point (passable at low tide) past an Iron Age Hill Fort and Viking Grave.

Lamlash – Brodick
After Lamlash you continue along the shore past Clauichlands Point and on to Corriegills Point where you head inland up one last climb before you join the road leading into Brodick.

Additional Days
Brodick
Brodick is the capital of Arran, centered round the ferry port and beach. Visit the castle and gardens, have a tour of the brewery, or visit the Isle of Arran Heritage museum. If the weather’s good, have a well earned day off on the beach, or have a round of golf! There is a great walk up Goat Fell, the highest mountain on the island, with stunning views of the surrounding mountains, and across the sea, from the summit.

Lochranza
A rest day in Lochranza could be spent exploring the ruin of Lochranza Castle, spotting seals on the shores of the loch, visiting the Arran whisky distillery, or even playing a round of golf.

Accommodation

Good accommodation and friendly hosts are an essential part of any holiday. We make a special effort to find the hidden gems, as well as keeping a close eye on the quality of the more mainstream accommodation.

As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night’s accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem. We have three former Keswick guest house owners on the staff – so we know the industry well.

We have a variety of accommodation on Arran, including small country house hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfasts and farm house accommodation. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail.

Single Rooms

We are happy to book single rooms on this walk at a supplement, but can’t normally book more than 2 single rooms for any 1 group.
