The Dales High Way

The Dales High Way is a hillwalkers paradise. Stretching 94 miles from Saltaire in West Yorkshire to Appleby in Cumbria, the High Way, as the name suggests, follows the glorious high ground over the West Yorkshire Moors, the Dales limestone country, and the Howgill Fells.

The route begins in the village of Saltaire, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. In the mid-19th century, on the banks of the River Aire, textile manufacturer Sir Titus Salt built not only his woolen mill, but also a village; with houses for his workers, and bath houses, a hospital, an institute for recreation and education, a school for the workers children and even a concert hall. Saltaire is a fascinating place worthy of thorough exploration.

The High Way itself could be described as having three quite differing landscapes. The first of these being the peaty, heather-clad moors that continue pretty much to fringes of Malhamdale. Your introduction to these is Rombalds Moor, a collective name for a number of local moors named according to the nearest town, such as Burley, Bingley and most famous of them all, Ilkley Moor.

On reaching Malhamdale you enter classic Dales limestone country, where there is almost as much going on beneath the ground as there is above it. Few places demand an additional day as much as Malham does. A day exploring Janet's Foss, Gordale Scar and Malham Tarn is a day well spent. The Dales also offers up some of the most challenging terrain on the High Way, including the crossing of the mighty Ingleborough and the temptation of climbing Yorkshire's highest peak, Whernside.

The final phase of the walk involves a traverse of the entire Howgill range in a tremendous six mile ridge walk. The imposing Howgills are a series of steep sided, round topped, grassy hills that fold smoothly into one another. The reward for your efforts are far reaching views taking in the likes of the Mallerstang-Garsdale Fells, the Yorkshire Three Peaks, the Lakeland Fells and the North Pennines. Once off the tops all that remains is a celebratory walk through the beautiful Cumbrian countryside, and with the hard work behind you, a chance to reflect on all that you've achieved and enjoyed on the incredible Dales High Way.

Length	5 - 10 nights
Full Route Length	94 miles / 151 km
Shortest Break	38 miles / 61 km

Grade

Moderate to Challenging

Whilst remaining hugely rewarding and thoroughly enjoyable, many would consider the Dales High Way to be a challenging walk at times. Even on the longer itineraries, there are still some fairly lengthy days over high ground. Throughout the course of the walk you will cross remote moors, climb Yorkshire's second highest peak and traverse the entire length of the Howgill Fells in a day.

Terrain: A combination of open moorland, limestone pavement, prominent hills and valley floors.

What's it like underfoot? The moorlands from Saltaire to Skipton are a mix of millstone grit, peat and heather which in dry weather allows for pretty good going with hopefully only a few awkward wet patches to navigate. Naturally in wet weather, progress will be slower. In the Dales, limestone pavement and grassland make up most of the ground. Around Ingleborough and Whernside the paths can be a little worn and particularly rocky in places, however there are some fairly lengthy slabbed sections which are easy to walk upon. The steep sided and round topped Howgills are in the main covered by dry rough grass making the going easy.

How Much Up & Down? Quite a lot. Although the moorland is undulating rather than hilly when on it, there is still the ascent and descent at either end to take into consideration. There is significant up and down throughout the Dales and of course there is the crossing of Ingleborough which stands at 723m/2372ft as well as walking the flanks of Whernside. There is steep ground getting both on and off the Howgills and at their highest point reach 676m/2217ft.

Signposting: There are distinctive Dales High Way markers along the route. Don't confuse these with markers for the Dales Way. There may also be markers for other routes such as the Coast to Coast.

Navigation: On paper it should be really straightforward. The guidebook is incredibly detailed with very useful advisory notes and we supply 1:25k Ordnance Survey maps clearly showing the route. As a note of caution there are a number of other routes crossing paths with the Dales High Way and at times sharing paths. Take time to ensure you are following the correct markers. Refer to your guidebook and map at regular intervals, especially during poor weather. Moorland can quickly become bleak and featureless in low cloud.

Weather: Fingers crossed you will experience dry, warm weather throughout your holiday and enjoy dry paths and tremendous views, but you must be prepared because the weather can change quickly, especially on moorland and over high ground. Good clothing, comfortable footwear and reliable waterproofs are essential. It is important you carry plenty of water on warm days. Pack your floppy hat and sun cream also!

Route

Saltaire to Skipton

The opening stretch of the Dales High Way is dominated by the heather clad Rombalds Moor. This is actually a collective name for several local moors commonly named according to the nearest town or village, such as Burley, Bingley and most famous of all, Ilkley Moor. This is a fascinating landscape, not least of all for its standing stones, prehistoric rock carvings and Bronze Age stone circle known as The Twelve Apostles. If leaving the main trail to spend the evening in Ilkley, take time to explore the huge Cow and Calf rock formation.

In all but poor weather the walking here is delightful as you make your way across a terrain of millstone grit, peat and heather. If you're unfortunate enough to encounter poor weather, refer to your map and guidebook regularly as distinctive features are few here in low cloud.

Beyond the village of Addingham the Way joins the Roman Road before climbing to Skipton Moor where you are rewarded with stunning views over the town.

Skipton to Settle

This section of the High Way begins with another stretch of moorland as you make your way over Sharp Haw, the distinctive summit of Flasby Fell, before some very pleasant riverside walking leads to the village of Hetton. Further moorland walking follows, passing Winterburn Reservoir and across Hetton Common towards the stunning panoramic viewpoint of Weets Top, and the start of a spectacular change in the landscape.

From Weets Top the majesty of the Yorkshire Dales is laid out before you. The high peaks, among them the mighty Ingleborough, limestone pavements, the scars, the dry valleys and the impressive dry stone walls that divide the luscious green meadows with their neat little barns.

If you have the time to factor in an additional day at Malham, then Janet's Foss, Gordale Scar, Watlowes dry valley and Malham Cove are all worthy of thorough exploration.

Leaving Malhamdale behind, the High Way climbs between Kirkby Fell and Grizedales to pass beneath the impressive Attermire Scar before dropping into the charming town of Settle.

Settle to Chapel-le-Dale

From Settle the High Way follows the River Ribble as far as the 14th century packhorse bridge at Little Stainforth. Having enjoyed a pleasant riverside walk and the delights of Stainforth Force, this is where the hard work is about to begin, as what comes next is a crossing of the

w: www.mickledore.co.uk

imposing Ingleborough. It is however worth noting that your guidebook offers an alternative route circumnavigating Ingleborough in case of poor weather.

The climb up Ingleborough through a series of dramatic broad limestone terraces is hugely rewarding. Look back for fine views of Pen-y-ghent, which along with Ingleborough and the soon to be discovered Whernside, makes up the iconic Yorkshire Three Peaks.

The views in all directions from Ingleborough's vast rocky summit are absolutely superb. A metal disk on the central shelter identifies all the peaks in view.

The descent from Ingleborough to Chapel-le-Dale is fairly steep, but thankfully brief. It's reassuring to know, again in case of poor weather, that there is a more gentle, albeit much longer alternative route off via Ribbleshead.

Chapel-le-Dale to Sedbergh

Providing temptation doesn't get in the way, then an ancient packhorse route, the Craven Way, leads all the way to Dent. The potential temptation comes less than two miles into the walk at Brunts car, where there is the option to break from the High Way and climb Yorkshire's highest peak, Whernside. Those that do will be rewarded with stunning panoramic views before descending the ridge to neatly rejoin the Way, having shortened the day by about a mile, but no doubt expelled a bit of energy in the process.

Otherwise it's a less strenuous walk to Winterscales with wonderful views of the massively impressive Ribbleshead Viaduct. The viaduct, spanning a quarter of a mile, boasting 24 magnificent arches and towering 104 feet above the ground is probably the most photographed landmark on the Dales High Way.

Once around Whernside's northern flank, one the greenest and loveliest of the Yorkshire Dales, Dentdale, opens out below in all its splendour.

Passing through Dent's narrow cobbled streets the Dales Way is joined for a time along the riverbank before the High Way breaks off to climb over Frostron with the reward of lovely views of the Howgills. The day ends by dropping into the picturesque village of Sedbergh.

Sedbergh to Ravenstonedale

The High Way now traverses the entire length of the Howgill Fells in a tremendous six mile ridge walk. The views from the tops are simply superb. Scanning clockwise; to the east is the Mallerstang-Garsdale range of Baugh, Swarth and Wild Boar Fells, to the south-east lie the aforementioned Yorkshire Three Peaks, to the west you see the rugged outline of the Lakeland Fells and finally to the north are the Orton Fells and beyond them the North Pennines, most notably Cross Fell and Great Dun Fell.

The Howgills stand apart from the rugged Lakeland fells and the peaty Pennine hills not only in location, but in character too. The Howgills are a series of steep sided, round topped, grassy hills that fold smoothly into one another. Just one note of caution, the Howgills are open, with no walls to follow nor stiles to cross and in poor weather one top can look much the same as the others, so if the cloud is low, do take time to refer to your map and guidebook at regular intervals to ensure you remain on track.

Coming off the Howgills the Dales High Way heads into the small village of Newbiggin-on-Lune where the official route then turns for Ravenstonedale Moor. However, as there is nowhere to source an evening meal in the village itself we extend our walk by a mile and a quarter into Ravenstonedale where evening meals are available. Your guidebook details a cycle/walk way avoiding the busy road.

Ravenstonedale to Appleby

The final section of the Dales High Way has a celebratory feel to it. With the big climbs over with it's time to take things a little easier and enjoy the Cumbrian countryside.

Having retraced your steps to Newbiggin-on-Lune the High Way heads over Ravenstonedale Moor to reach the remote Sunbiggin Tarn, a Site of Special Scientific Interest, and an important location for both migrating and resident birds.

Next comes a pleasant surprise. The limestone pavement, last seen in the Yorkshire Dales reappears in the form of Great Asby Scar, one of the country's finest limestone pavements outside of the Ingleborough area. The views from here are superb with the Eden valley opening out ahead, watched over by the towering northern Pennines.

The Pennine view remains constant as you pass through Great Asby and alongside the delightful Rutter Force. The final few miles are through lush green farmland alongside Hoff Beck to the attractive market town of Appleby.

Additional days

Saltaire

Built by Sir Titus Salt, the village of Saltaire takes its name from a combination of the founder's surname and the name of the river by which it stands. Sir Titus Salt not only built his textile mill here, but also houses for his workers, bath houses, a hospital, an institute for recreation and education, a school for the workers children and even a concert hall.

Salts Mill, which opened in 1853, is now a place of art, dining and shopping. In the village itself there are a variety of shops, a choice of places to eat, incredible architecture on view and a lovely park to enjoy.

Saltaire was designated a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 2001.

Skipton

With its beautiful and well preserved medieval castles, cobbled streets and its location on the southern edge of the Yorkshire Dales National Park, Skipton is a nice place to spend an extra day. It is a friendly small town with a market four days a week, you can explore the castle or take a boat trip on the canal.

Settle

Surrounded by stunning countryside and iconic landmarks, the charming town of Settle is well worth a day of discovery. It's an ideal base for all sorts of adventures from cave exploration and abseiling to road cycling and mountain biking. There's a fabulous selection of friendly independent shops and when it comes to eating there are plenty of places offering delicious food for all tastes and budgets.

How to Book

Once you have decided which holiday you wish to book, please fill in the form at the back of this brochure and either post or fax it to us. We will get in touch with you shortly afterwards to confirm your holiday details.

Alternatively you can book on our website mickledore.co.uk, or telephone us in office hours.

Accommodation

Good accommodation and friendly hosts are an essential part of any holiday. We make a special effort to find the hidden gems, as well as keeping a close eye on the quality of the more mainstream accommodation.

As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem.

The Dales high Way includes a great variety of accommodation, including small country hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfasts, farm house accommodation, and Victorian town houses. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail.

Single Rooms

We are happy to book single rooms on this walk at a supplement, but can't normally book more than two single rooms for any one group.

Client Feedback

We're proud of our reputation for quality holidays. There are plenty of customer reviews on our Website but here's a couple of comments to give you a flavour:

Greetings from Canada, we send our special thank you for all your hard work in putting together our 'Coast to Coast' trip. The trekking was hard but our B&B's were very nice. We met a lot of wonderful people along the way and had much fun in the pubs.

Waldemar Sambor, North Vancouver Canada.

Dear All, thank you so much for a wonderfully organised holiday. Everything was superb. The attention to detail was brilliant and made a long hard walk so much more enjoyable. Thank you. Would you use Mickledore again? Yes, and I'll recommend you to anyone. Brilliant service. Thank you.

Helen Finlay, Hampshire UK

Every arrangement made by Mickledore went smoothly. The hosts and accommodations were extremely wellvettied. We also felt we chose the right tour in terms of distance, the route, and the number of days (including the rest day which we used to much advantage, being able to take our time at Vindolanda). We found the hike challenging, but not overwhelming and we will highly recommend Mickledore to anyone who considers such tours.

Michael Pesch, Minnesota USA

All arrangements and planning responses were handled effectively and efficiently. Accommodation and baggage transfer all excellent and all went to plan. Very useful information provided about places to eat and where shops etc were located. Thanks for a great holiday we really enjoyed it.

Andrew & Christine Snell, Wiltshire UK

Holidays have been great adventures and experiences. That is underpinned by the confidence we have in the structure that Mickledore have in place for the trip. Everything/ everyone proved reliable.

Mrs Palmer, Kent

The holiday was well organised and everything ran smoothly. Having met other walkers on the trail either "going it alone" or using other tour operators I think Mickledore seems better in comparison especially on accommodation and taxi transfers. Keep up the good work.

Dales High Way

We offer 3 itineraries walking the whole of the Dales High Way. Our 6 day walk starts with 2 really quite challenging 19 mile days, much of it over moorland, before things begin to ease off a little. Our 8 day walk is generally a more comfortable affair, however the 16 miles from Chapel-le-Dale to Sedbergh will still ask questions of some walkers stamina, but this stretch can be split by choosing our 9 day option. The final 14 miles of the walk is over relatively easy ground in comparison to what's gone before.
