Hadrian's Wall

Hadrian's Wall Path was opened in 2003 and proved an immediate success with walkers from both the UK and abroad. The route follows the course of northern Europe's largest surviving Roman monument, built on the orders of Emperor Hadrianus between AD122 and AD128 to protect the northern extreme of the Roman Empire.

The path crosses the country coast to coast from Wallsend, near Newcastle, through the rolling border countryside of Northumberland, continuing on to the historic city of Carlisle and finally to the flat plains of the Solway Coast.

Hadrian's Wall Path was the very first National Trail to follow the course of a UNESCO World Heritage Site. To ensure that the integrity of the Wall was in no way compromised, an archaeologist was on hand each time a signpost or waymark was driven into the ground. As a consequence, it took ten years to open Hadrian's Wall to the public. Four years more than it took the 2nd and 6th legions of the Roman Army to build the actual wall. However, anyone who has ever walked the trail will testify, it was well worth all the work.

The most dramatic section of the walk is in the centre, where the landscape is at its most impressive and large stretches of the wall still remain. Here too are some of the best preserved fortresses. It's easy to imagine how these windswept moors would have looked all those years ago as the Wall, punctuated by forts, milecastles and turrets, snaked its way through the undulating Northumberland countryside. This wilderness is bookended by the bustling City of Newcastle on the east, and on the west the breathtakingly beautiful plains at Bowness on Solway, an area of outstanding natural beauty and a haven for birdwatchers.

With the Romans gone, the wall fell into disrepair and much of the stone became the fabric of the churches, abbeys and priories you see today. The Wall's legacy lives on in the names of the towns villages along the line of the route; Wallsend, Wallhouses, Walton and even Oldwall being just a few examples.

Despite a few bumps and hollows, the path itself is considered one of the easier national trails, a route where you can spend a week on well-trodden paths marvelling at the fascinating remains and the stunning scenery around you.

Essential Info

Length	4 - 11 nights
Full Route Length	82 miles / 132 km
Shortest Break	24 miles / 38 km

Grade

Easy to Moderate

Of the National Trails trails we cover, this is the easiest. The route covers rolling countryside and moorlands, but not mountains. Many people with limited walking experience have completed this route.

Terrain: Varied. Urban footpaths for day one, then generally fields and parkland until Housesteads. Moorland up to 350m for the central section, then more fields/parkland to Carlisle, followed by flat coastal plain to Bowness on Solway.

What's it like underfoot?

Pretty good. Well maintained paths throughout, although sections can get a bit muddy in wet weather.

How Much Up & Down? Not too much! Generally rolling countryside with some gentle ups and downs. In the central section there are numerous short steep climbs.

Signposting: Good.

Navigation: Pretty straightforward. Well defined paths, and good signposting.

Route

Wallsend to Newburn

The walk starts in Wallsend in Newcastle upon Tyne, on the site of Segedunum, a fort with an interesting museum. It follows the River Tyne into the city to the redeveloped central quayside, centered on the 'Blinking Eye' Millennium Bridge, which leads to the Baltic Arts Centre and distinct Sage Building. The route continues besides the river to Newburn, on the outskirts of Newcastle.

Newburn to Humshaugh

The route continues pleasantly through the Tyne Valley Country Park before climbing to the hilltop village of Heddon and onwards through rolling countryside. Turrets and milecastles become part of the landscape. The final 2 miles are marked by a descent through pleasant parkland to the North Tyne Valley and the picturesque villages of Wall, Chollerford and Humshaugh, (all of which we use for overnight stops).

Humshaugh to Twice Brewed

The route soon reaches Northumbria National Park and classic Roman Wall country with expansive views and undulating moorland. The route climbs steadily at first, past turrets and a Brocolitia Roman fort; it then becomes more steeply undulating on reaching the Whin Sill escarpment.

The views of open moorland, the South Tyne Valley, the Pennines and of the wall itself following the ridges ahead are breathtaking. The route passes the well preserved Housesteads Fort and continues in a similar dramatic fashion to Twice Brewed and on to your accommodation.

Twice Brewed to Gilsland

Twice Brewed is a good place to schedule in a rest day so you have time to explore the Vindolanda or Housesteads Roman forts. The route continues to follow the escarpment, over rugged crags of Winshield, equally as impressive as the previous section. It passes the remains of Great Chester's Fort and the Roman Army Museum and continues to the pretty villages of Greenhead and Gilsland.

w: www.mickledore.co.uk

Gilsland to Carlisle

Just after Gilsland the fort of Birdoswald is reached, after which the route continues high above the steep sided Irthington Gorge, before beginning a gradual descent at the village of Banks. Rich agricultural landscape and parkland replaces the moorland as the route drops steadily through the villages of Walton and Irthington before reaching the River Eden for the final section into the historic border city of Carlisle. Carlisle's history is very much evident with its cathedral, castle and old city walls.

Carlisle to Bowness-on-Solway

The final section is a complete contrast to all that has gone before; initially along the banks of the Eden and then across the pancake flat salt marshes of the Solway Firth. The mountains of the Lake District are visible to the south and Scotland is just across the water to the north. This expansive estuary is internationally renowned for its thriving bird life and the area has a peaceful charm of its own.

Additional Days

Twice Brewed

Twice Brewed is an excellent place for a rest day - in the middle of the most dramatic section of the wall, and close to the best preserved Roman forts. Vindolanda can take the best part of a day - there are extensive remains, a comprehensive museum, and often an archeological dig in progress. Housesteads and the Roman Army Museum are also close by.

Carlisle

Carlisle is an historic border city, complete with castle and cathedral. Tullie House Museum has a lot of Roman artefacts and is worth a visit. The cathedral was founded in 1122 and is open every day. The castle has dominated the city for 9 centuries, and also houses a military museum - there are guided tours daily. There are plenty of shops and lots of places to eat or have coffee.

Would you use Mickledore again? YES, definitely, and speaking to people on the route we learned that you have a good reputation. We had a fabulous and memorable holiday and I can now strike Hadrian's Wall off my bucket list!

Tania Comery, Ilkeston UK

We are grateful for your very professional service. Everything went smooth and the accommodations were all very nice - perfect for our honeymoon.

Gier Johnsen, Bodo Norway

Can't think of anything to improve. We had a great week. Everything went smoothly and we had no complaints at all. Thank you. When we plan our next walk, your company will be the first place we go to.

Karl Whitfield, Northamptonshire UK

Every arrangement made by Mickledore went smoothly. The hosts and accommodations were extremely well-vetted. We also felt we chose the right tour in terms of distance, the route, and the number of days (including the rest day which we used to much advantage, being able to take our time at Vindolanda). We found the hike challenging, but not overwhelming and we will highly recommend Mickledore to anyone who considers such tours.

Michael Pesch, Minnesota USA

Everything was great, bags were at every stop on time. You were great at staying in contact. Great choice of accommodation.

Lauren Alley, Merseyside UK

Our walk holiday was superbly organized, I would recommend your company to everyone. Mickledore made this adventure stress free. Overall an amazing experience.

Shawn Chadbourn, Warwickshire, UK

From the start to the end you have understood what we were looking for and delivered it. All places we visited and stayed at were of a very good standard.

Angela Royston

The organisation from start to finish was excellent, with smooth luggage transfers, mostly very high standard B&Bs, good food recommendations and the excellent map and guidebook you provided meant we didn't get lost, A brilliant first experience.

The Whole Hadrian's Wall Path

Which Way to Walk the Wall?

We are happy to arrange the walk in either direction. Most people walk from east to west, as described here. This is the way the official guidebook describes the route, but another guidebook offers a description in either direction. Some people prefer starting in the west, as this is the direction of the prevailing wind. However, we often get easterly winds as well, and we think it's good to get the urban bit around Newcastle out of the way early. If you'd like to start in the west, please make a note in the comments section on the booking form.

The Whole Hadrian's Wall Path

Of all the various Hadrian's Wall itineraries, the 10 and 11 day itineraries are the longest. If you want to cover the whole Hadrian's Wall Walk route but also want plenty of time to enjoy the Roman remains and the landscape, then these itineraries are a good choice. We have kept distances particularly short in the hilliest section where the wall and forts are best preserved. The overnight stops are identical for the two options until Carlisle. This 10 day itinerary covers the final, easy, 14 miles in a single day, whereas the 11 day option splits it in two at Burgh by Sands.

Hadrian's Wall Highlights: Corbridge to Bowness on Solway

Unless you're really intent on walking the whole official route, this is the most pleasant option if you're looking for a longer walk. It covers nearly the whole route without spending time in the urban areas of Newcastle, where there isn't much of the wall to be seen. Many people choose to miss out the early part of the walk and start at Corbridge.

Hadrian's Wall Highlights: Corbridge to Carlisle

This version of the Highlights is similar to the holiday above as it misses out the urban area around Newcastle. This holiday finishes at Carlisle as there is little left of the Wall beyond here, although the Solway estuary beyond does have a peaceful charm of its own.
