

The South West Coast Path: North Devon

The South West Coast path is England's longest waymarked long-distance footpath and National Trail. The area is full of interesting wildlife and birdlife, and you may even spot dolphins and seals.

Our north Devon holidays include stopover nights in the popular towns of Minehead, Lynmouth and Ilfracombe.

There is diverse scenery on this section of the South West Coast Path.

The first stretch takes you over some of the highest cliffs in England where the expanse of Exmoor meets the sea. There are extensive views inland and north across the Bristol Channel with the coast of Wales as the backdrop. You will pass through coastal woodland and see vast sandy beaches popular with surfers. In contrast is the large estuary of the Taw and Torridge rivers, flanked by sand dunes and marshland, where the path follows the former railway and later the estuary. This is an area valued for its birdlife and incorporates the Tarka Trail, a series of footpaths following the route taken by Tarka the Otter in the book by Henry Williamson.

Why do this walk?

- Walk along one of Britain's most dramatic and longest coastlines.
- Unspoilt countryside with abundant wildlife.
- The 'Great Hangman' is the highest point on the South West Coastal path.
- See purple tinted moors and Exmoor ponies

Essential Info

Length 8 – 10 nights
Full Route Length 88 miles/ 142 km

Grade

Moderate

Grades - This is not a technically difficult walk and should be easy to tackle for most reasonably fit people.

Terrain - The paths are good, and there are no major route finding challenges.

What's it like underfoot? Generally good paths and tracks, although a few sections can get muddy after heavy rain

How much up & down? – More than you'd think! Although you never reach more than 400m above sea level (and most of the time not more than 200m) there are many short steep sections. Most days involve ascents of 200-400m metres, although no section is very steep for very long.

Signposting: Good – the path is well waymarked.

Navigation: Pretty straightforward – good signposting, and generally well defined tracks.

Weather: You may be lucky enough to encounter warm, dry weather over the whole route and enjoy dry paths and tremendous views, but you must be prepared because the weather can change quickly. Good clothing and waterproofs are essential, but don't forget you sunhat, sunblock and shorts!

Route

Minehead to Porlock Weir

The South West Coast Path begins in Minehead, actually in Somerset rather than Devon. To mark the start of the full 630 miles there is a wonderful sculpture of two hands opening a map of the route. Have your photo taken to mark the start of your adventure! Minehead is a lively town with lots of museums and good public transport links.

The trail eases you in as you leave the town behind you and follow the path through woodland, along steep cliff tops through beautiful wooded combs with bracken and gorse. After a few miles you emerge from the woodland at North Hill where you have two options of the route to choose from. The low route is a gentle walk through farmlands passing by field of livestock. The more rugged alternative route offers a wilder, longer and more remote experience with better sea views where you might be able to spot some of the local wildlife.

On a clear day this section has fantastic views across the Bristol

Channel to the Welsh Coast and tiny islands of Steep Holm and Flat Holm. The two paths meet up at Bossington from where you follow a flat track to the village of Porlock Weir which is home to a thousand year old port and several thatched cottages.

Porlock Weir to Lynton/Lynmouth

From Porlock Weir you leave the harbour and houses at Millers and Anchor, climbing the steep slopes passing thatched houses. One essential stop on the South West Coast Path is at Culbone Church of St Beuno which is apparently the smallest parish church in England at only 35ft long with enough room to fit 30 people. From this church you have two options of the trail to choose from.

The southern trail from here heads up the hill, out of the trees, into farmland and from there onto a quiet road. The northern trail is through ancient woods and is known to be rugged but it is rich in history and a wonderful alternative to the southern trail.

Once back on the main route you then follow the coastline under the woodland canopy climbing the slopes onto the clifftops. Here you will cross the Somerset-Devon border. The path then deviates off the main track to allow you to visit the 19th Century stone cross known as Sister's Fountain.

From here the trail becomes more exposed which is a pleasant change from walking through the woodlands. From Coddow Combe you then reach Foreland Point which is the most northerly point in Devon with beautiful view of Lynmouth in the near distance.

Lynmouth to Combe Martin

From here your walk connects with another trail called the Tarka trail which is named after Henry Williamson's book 'Tarka the Otter'. There are several locations along this part of the trail that Williamson based his book on and it is interesting to spot these whilst on your walk.

You will start the day along an easy tarmac path then a grassy path skirting Hollerday Hill. There are stunning views out to sea and along the shoreline to the spectacular rock formations of Valley of Rocks with the appropriately named Castle Rock ahead of you. From here there's a short but pleasant road walk with Lee Abbey on your right which was built in 1850. You then continue up a steep and wooded road route, or you can choose a more off-piste Woody Bay alternative route around Crock Point.

On this section you can enjoy the many cliff top flowers, especially the abundance of bluebells and primroses in the springtime. The Exmoor coasts provides a wide and interesting habitat for many rare species of flora and fauna, which include red deer, stag beetles, blackneck moth and the whitebeam trees which are unique to Exmoor. Soon you will reach the highest point on the South West Coast path at Great Hangman standing at 1043 feet and rewarding you with breathtaking views here of Exmoor, the Welsh coast and Lundy. Please note this is a challenging walk, particularly the steep climb up Great Hangman from Sherrycombe as you are exposed to the elements. It is only a short distance from here to Combe Martin where you can rest your feet after your challenging days walk.

Combe Martin to Woolacombe

With stunning coastal views, this section from Combe Martin is well known for its wild and spectacular views. There are some easy cliff paths but also a few strenuous ascents between Lee Bay and Morte Point. Morte Point is designated a Site of Special Scientific Interest for its heathland and grasses. You might be able to spot grey seals, gannets and in the summertime dolphins, sunfish and even basking sharks. After Morte Point the vast sandy bay of Woolacombe will come into view.

Woolacombe to Braunton

From Woolacombe the trail is a lot flatter which allows you to take in the view a bit more and you'll notice the change in scenery. From Baggy Point you can spot lots of seabirds and even the odd rock climber. The views change from the cliff tops and woodland paths to a much flatter and easier path closer to the shoreline. The route then passes through the village of Croyde and Saunton which are both known as a haven for surfers. You will also pass through Saunton Sands which is an army training location and access can be limited. Although, you are well compensated as the dunes at the back of Saunton form the Braunton Burrows which is an area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Braunton Burrows Nature Reserve, has the largest sand dune system in England and is home to rare snails and lizards.

Braunton to Instow

From Braunton the trail follows the estuary on the disused railway track and you need to keep a close eye on the directions in your guidebook to avoid taking a wrong turn onto a paved path near a busy road. The trail continues on through the Burrows along the banks of the Taw River, where you might spot the odd heron, oystercatcher and even an egret or godwits. This section of the SWCP keeps in-line with the Tarka Trail with views of the marshes across the estuary.

Instow to Westward Ho!

The Tarka trail diverts away from you now on the last stage. The trail from Instow is mainly on paved pathways and is fairly flat walking. You are treated to views back over the river Taw as you follow the Torridge River south towards Bideford. Cross the bridge then again follow the river north sticking to the paved path which is well signposted. Soon you will reach the village of Appledore and, shortly after that, Northam Burrows Country Park which is filled with grassy plane landscapes and marshes that are a brilliant spot for birdwatching. The route then hugs the side of Pebble Ridge which is a hot spot for surfers and you can stroll along the beachfront to your final evening at Westward Ho!

Additional Days

We can arrange extra nights at any of the overnight stops, allowing for rest days, or giving you more time to explore the locality. We recommend Lynmouth/ Lynton, Ilfracombe and Westward Ho!

Lynmouth / Lynton

Spend a day off the trail in the picturesque twin villages of Lynton and Lynmouth, dubbed "England's Little Switzerland" ever since Robert Southey remarked upon their distinctly Alpine appearance. Ride the Cliff Railway funicular which connects Lynmouth at the foot of the cliffs to Lynton, perched 500 feet above. Visit Watersmeet and indulge in a cream tea (and argue about where the jam goes) in the tea garden before exploring the ancient woodlands in and around one of the country's deepest river gorges. There are plenty of historic houses and gardens nearby, or just spend a day experiencing the local arts and crafts and a spot of shopping

Ilfracombe

With a growing reputation as North Devon's culinary and cultural hub, Ilfracombe is built around a small working harbour and offers fresh seafood brought in daily and a thriving local arts and crafts scene. Don't miss the divisive 'Verity' – Damien Hirst's 20 metre bronze statue representing truth and justice – or the Tunnels Beaches, reached through tunnels hand carved in the 1820s, which helped turn the village into a popular seaside hotspot. Take a ferry to Lundy Island, fantastically diverse for an island only three miles long and half a mile wide. Or if you prefer to keep your feet on dry land try an evening stroll to Capstone Hill for panoramic views across the town and watch the sun set into the Atlantic.

Westward Ho!

It's famed for its surfing beaches and the long expanse of clean sand backed by a pebble ridge and grasslands. The village was developed by Victorian entrepreneurs in response to the bestselling novel 'Westward Ho!' by Charles Kingsley.

Accommodation

Good accommodation and friendly hosts are an essential part of any holiday. We understand this and go out of our way to find the best. We put a great deal of effort into hand picking our accommodation and matching it to individual customer requirements. As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem.

We use a variety of accommodation, including small country house hotels, guest houses in market towns, bed and breakfasts in farm houses, country cottages and Victorian town houses. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail. For example, over the course of your trip you might stay in a village inn, a bed and breakfast in a converted barn, a Victorian guest house, on a working farm, and in a Georgian hotel.

We always try to arrange en suite accommodation, i.e. rooms with their own bathrooms, for each night of your stay. However, in some of the more remote locations accommodation is limited and occasionally we may have to book rooms with shared bathrooms for one or two nights of your holiday, (especially if the booking is made at short notice), but we will always let you know if this is likely to be the case.

Single Rooms We are happy to book single rooms on this walk but cannot normally book more than two for any one group. Single room bookings include a supplement.
